MEN PROMINENT IN WAR

OFFLEY WILL BE BACK TO PROBE ANOTHER AFFAIR?

Rumor Has Special Investigator Working on McBride-Afong White Slave Matter

Due to rumors which were the subject of a federal court decision this morning, it has developed that William M. Offley, the special investigator from the attorney-general's office who recently paid a mysterious visit to Honolulu to probe certain local judicial matters, may again jump into the limelight here in connection with the session of the October grand jury which commenced this morning.

Rumor has it that Mr. Offley either is on his way to or shortly will depart for Hawaii as a witness in the matter of Claudius H. McBride and Henry Afong, who recently were arrested at the instance of District Attorney Jeff McCann on a charge of having violated the white slave act, and whose case was dismissed by acting United States Commissioner Charles S. Davis. Dame Rumor intervenes again at this point, and says that the October grand jury will go into an investigation of the case.

M. A. Thomas, special assistant to the attorney-general, and J. W. Thompson, assistant district attorney, when interviewed this morning, said that they did not know whether the grand jury would investigate the case. Mr. Offley's name does not appear on the list of witnesses who have been, or will be, summoned to appear before the grand jury. The names of Claudius McBride and Henry Afong are not on the list.

In connection with this there is another rumor that Mr. Offley is coming here at the instance of Jeff McCann to make an investigation of the McBride-Afong case.

The Knights of Columbus are coming to Hawaii on their next annual pilgrimage. According to announcement received here this big organization will be held in July, 1915, the itinerary including a trip to the volcano.

A 10,000-ton steamer will be chartered to take the Knights and their accompanying party to and from Hawaii. The list of passengers is limited to 300 and according to report is already largely filled.

A Hawaiian council of the Knights is to be instituted while the visitors are here.

Consume Long Time Crossing Pacific—Deny Making Any Calls While En Route

Two large German steamers, their mission one of mystery, their officers silent as the graves, loomed up on the horizon off the port of Honolulu at daylight, while port officials are for once puzzled regarding their disposition, facing as they do a congested harbor with its limited berthing facilities.

Fully disguised, with tint of funnels materially changed, names obliterated at the hand of their crew, all distinguishing marks removed, the visitors ride at anchor off the harbor, awaiting the action of the federal health authorities, who will insist that the steamers be fumigated and in every way placed in sanitary condition.

AUSTRALIA MAKES EXCEPTION IN FAVOR OF LOCAL MEAT COMPANY

The recent action of the Australian government in forbidding the export of meat materially affected the conditions in these islands, owing to the fact that the Hawaii Meat Company depended upon the Australian supply to fill the government contract for the army forces on Oahu. The available supply of local meats was not sufficient to meet all the needs of the army and the civil population.

The matter was reported by General Carter to the war department with the request that it be taken up with the Australian authorities, inasmuch as the price of meats from the United States practically doubled the expense of the contract. This loss would have fallen on the Hawaii Meat Company and not on the government, but it was deemed only fair to endeavor to aid them in fulfilling their contract without injecting war prices into the meat supply.

Information has been received at department headquarters that the state department took the matter up with the Australian consul-general at Sydney, who has reported that the Commonwealth sanctions the export of meat to fill the existing contract in Hawaii, on condition that none of the articles are re-exported. It is expected that the United States government will give the necessary guarantee that not only all meats shipped from Australia to the Hawaiian Islands under contract with the Hawaii Meat Company for the troops stationed in these islands, but also meat shipped to the quartermaster's department, under its contract with the Inter-Island Steam Navigation Company, Ltd., for use of the quartermaster's department in the islands and on its transports, will not be re-exported or used for other purposes.

SECOND M'CARN TRIAL SET FOR NEXT MONDAY

Rumor Says Prosecution May Enter Nolle Prose; Cathcart Fails on Confirmation

While there is some talk that the prosecution may enter a nolle prosequi when the case of Jeff McCann is called for its second trial before Circuit Judge Whitney next Monday morning, City and County Attorney J. W. Cathcart does not confirm it. It is the general opinion that no such action will be taken and that three weeks more will be taken to pass over the same ground again for the benefit of a new jury.

On the motion of Attorney Cathcart this morning that the hearing of the second trial be set for some time early next week, Judge Whitney fixed the date at next Monday morning, at 9 o'clock. Cathcart's motion was opposed by Attorney Joseph Lightfoot, who urged immediate trial, beginning tomorrow morning. The city and county attorney explained that he had a large number of affairs in his office in the way of other criminal cases, to dispose of.

It also was explained that L. Andrews, special deputy attorney-general, who has been assisting the prosecution, is too ill to continue the strenuous work at present. Judge Whitney stated that he could not very well pre-empt for at least two days, Friday and Saturday, as he has been selected as acting associate justice of the supreme court to sit with that body on those days in the argument of the Kewalo reclamation case.

A special venire of 35 taxpayers was drawn today, from which the second McCann jury is to be chosen. The special venire consists of Ernest E. Lyman, Louis D. Warren, Robert N. Corbaley, John A. Bortfield, George F. Campbell, Albert V. Gear, Benjamin K. Asam, Anthony T. Silver, Frank K. Archer, James W. Lloyd, Sidney T. Carr, James Nott, Jr., Clarence W. Macfarlane, Richard L. Gilliland, James H. Peterson, Frederick S. Lyman, Sr., William F. Armstrong, James Guild, Adolph B. Gert, James C. Kelley, Edward B. Friel, Edmond Swan, William H. Stewart, William W. Chamberlain and Benjamin H. Zabian.

Jury Falls to Agree.

After having been out more than six hours, the jury in the McCann trial announced at 1 o'clock Sunday morning that it could not reach a verdict. The instructions were given the jury at 7:15 o'clock Saturday evening, following a lengthy address by City and County Attorney John W. Cathcart, which closed the argument for the prosecution.

At 7:20 o'clock the jurymen retired to the jury room and shortly after announced that they wished to go to dinner. Accompanied by the bailiff, they repaired to a downtown hotel, returning at 8 o'clock. After about half an hour of deliberation, they sent out a call for newspapers. The jurymen then called for the gun which Jeff McCann had in his possession at the time of the alleged assault in the federal building. Later, they requested a copy of the court's instructions, and FENWAY PARK, Boston, Oct. 12.—A game and splendid finish to an thrilling battle as was ever recorded in a world's baseball series brought their third straight victory today to the Boston Braves.

Twelve innings of nerve-racking, speedy playing ended in triumph for Stallings' men by the score of 5 to 4, and as a consequence of the three victories in three games played a majority of the baseball critics practically concede the world's pennant to the Braves.

Some timely batting on each side gave two runs apiece in the tenth inning. The eleventh was scoreless. In the twelfth Mann of Boston brought the winning run in by speeding home from second when young Joe Bush threw a bunt wild to first base.

The Philadelphia Athletics looked like certain winners in the tenth inning when they shoved two runs over the plate. For five full innings before that not a run had been scored, and when the Athletics got their bases of tallies even the most loyal Boston fans shook their heads and hoped against hope that the Bostonians could do something with the Philadelphia pitcher in that critical last half of the tenth.

The nerve of the Braves, exhibited in the National league when they fought their way from the bottom to the top, held good and while the thousands of Boston fans went wild with excitement the Braves put across the two runs necessary to tie the score.

The eleventh inning saw no change, neither team being able to get a man across the plate.

GAME CLOSE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS.

An idea of the closeness of the game may be gained from the fact that at the end of the ninth inning each side had exactly the same number of runs, hits and errors.

The weather was fine again today, being cool and clear.

"Bullet" Bush, one of the heroes of the world's series last year, was sent into the box by Connie Mack of Philadelphia, with Wallie Schang backing.

Stallings sent Tyler who has been doing fine work all season, in to pitch, with the reliable Hank Gowdy catching.

Both Tyler for Boston and Bush for Philadelphia pitched strong games, with little to choose between them. However, Bush's fielding error in the twelfth inning allowed the winning score.

ATHLETICS TAKE LEAD.

The Athletics took the lead in the first inning, shoving one run over the plate. Murphy, one hand-bitting outfielder, fanned Tyler as the first man up and laced out a ringing double. Babe O'Driscoll sacrificed him neatly to third. Eddie Collins drove out a long sacrifice fly and Murphy was ready to race home after the catch but the Boston outfielder, Connolly, muffed the fly and Murphy trotted home easily. J. Franklin Baker was next up, but Tyler did not allow the error to unnerve him and struck out the hard-hitting third baseman.

The Braves could do nothing in their half of the first inning, Joe Bush having lots of speed, sharp curves and good control. Both teams by this time had got down to close playing.

BOSTON EVENS IT UP.

Little "Rabbit" Maranville evened things up in the second inning. Schmidt struck out and Deal drove out a fly that was easily captured by a Philadelphia fielder. Bush had trouble getting the ball over the plate for the diminutive Maranville and the "Rabbit" flinched to first on four balls. He immediately stole second and Hank Gowdy smashed out a timely double, scoring the runner. Tyler struck out, leaving Gowdy on second.

MORE SCORING IN FOURTH.

In the fourth inning there was more scoring. Collins for Philadelphia drove a liner that was caught, and Baker again struck out, but Jack McInnis doubled and Jimmy Walsh singled, McInnis' dashing across the plate—Barry was out at first on an infield grounder.

The Braves came right back, tying the score in the last half of the fourth. Whitted was out at first on a grounder. Schmidt singled and advanced to second on Deal's infield grounder, which could not be handled in time to force Schmidt. Maranville was next up and lined out a tremendousously long hit close to the foul line. He ran around the bases at full speed and scored amid tremendous cheering, bringing Schmidt home ahead of him.

However, the umpire declared the hit a foul and Maranville went back to bat. He followed his long hit with a sharp single, scoring Schmidt. He then stole second and dashed to third when Schang, the Philadelphia catcher, threw the ball wild to catch him at second on the steal.

Gowdy walked, and it looked as though Boston would break down the Philadelphia defense at this point, but Stallings called for a double steal and as Maranville came home he was caught at the plate, Boston scoring but one run.

The tenth was one of the most nerve-racking innings ever seen in a big series. Wallie Schang opened Philadelphia's half with a single. Bush struck out but Daney Murphy came through with a single. O'Driscoll went out at first on a grounder. Tyler fanned a little and Eddie Collins walked. Frank Baker was up next but with the bases full and the game so tight Manager Stallings could not take a chance on walking the redoubtable slugger, and Tyler "laid 'em over." Baker knocked a ball to the infield that could not be handled in time to retire him at first, getting a safe hit, and both Schang and Murphy scored. Jack McInnis flew out, ending the inning for Philadelphia. At this point it looked like a sure Philadelphia victory.

But the Braves were not through yet. Big Hank Gowdy came through with a great crash that sent the ball far out for a home run. Josh Devore, taken off the bench to bat for Tyler, struck out. Then Outfielder Moran walked and when Johnny Evers singled Moran took third. Connolly drove out a sacrifice fly that scored Moran, tying the score and sending the Boston rooters into a delirium of joy. Whitted ended the inning with a stiff liner that was caught safely.

BOSTON MAKES GREAT FINISH.

Having tied the score, Boston won out in a great finish. Big Bill James, hero of Saturday's game, was put in to pitch in place of Tyler. Neither side could score in the eleventh inning.

James was invincible in the first half of the twelfth, Philadelphia not being dangerous. In the last half Gowdy again showed his worth at bat, driving out a double. Leslie Mann was sent out to run for him. Outfielder Gilbert was sent to bat for James in the hope of clinching the game with a hit. Bush purposely passed Gilbert. Moran laid down a bunt, pulling off the unexpected, and Bush, after fielding the ball, threw wild to first and Mann scored the winning run of the game.
